

Four Four Time Logging Software - Simple time recording for busy people!

Category - Major employers, home workers, part time workers, small business, self-employed

The Challenge

To provide a simple time logging system for people working flexible hours, working from home or needing to time work for hourly charging, time management or future planning.

The Solution

Tony Spiers of Four Four Time Limited created The Four Four Time Project Timer, which will log time accurately with a click of the mouse, needing no manual input with timesheets. The USP is SIMPLICITY, achieved by the fact it is stand alone software which is not part of an unnecessarily complicated system linked into other activities. The software will work alongside any other application on the computer, simply recording time.

Current users love the fact that it is a simple "click on" and "click off" application, which will log work and produce reports for daily activity or other selected period, or by project name, with several additional functions to make life easy. Full description of the features, benefits, online demonstration, case study and testimonials are on the website at www.fourfourtime.co.uk.

The Results

For employers

- flexible working by hour and location can be very simply monitored
- salary by hourly pay can be accurately calculated
- project time for charging can be easily recorded
- future project planning is enabled by forecasts using time data from previous work
- time management by both employers and employees.

For employees

- opens automatically when the computer is switched on
- always on top option reminds users to start timing (minimises to task bar)
- it does not need manual input of times, therefore is not time consuming
- easily switch between projects when necessary

Copyright
Jill Spiers
9 May 2007

